National Organization of Parents Of Murdered Children, Inc.

For the families and friends of those who have died by violence

2019 Annual Report
Parents Of Murdered Children, Inc. (POMC) is the only nationwide organization dedicated to helping survivors of homicide victims cope with the devastation and grief caused by the murder of their loved ones. POMC strives to develop programs and services that support, and assist survivors of homicide victims. In addition, these programs and services help keep murderers behind bars, assist in solving unsolved cases, and educate, train and inform society of the problems faced in the aftermath of murder.

Over the past 40 years, POMC has worked hard to expand its outreach throughout the United States and abroad. POMC continues to strive to meet the ever growing needs of survivors of homicide victims and honor our mission to make a difference through on-going emotional support, education, prevention, advocacy and awareness.

In 2019, there were over 15,000 homicides in the United States. When a loved one is murdered, surviving family members suffer an unimaginable loss, and require significant support in their interactions with the criminal justice system. Their tragic loss is compounded by trying to make sense of such a senseless act, and trying to seek justice and accountability on behalf of their murdered loved ones.

We at POMC respond daily to the most profound violent tragedy of all, that of murder. As we approach another year of service to survivors of this tragedy, we pause and give thanks to all of our dedicated volunteers and staff. Together they provide the leadership and support that make POMC a successful nationwide organization. Together we do make the difference.

“The purpose of human life is to serve and show compassion and the will to help others.” Albert Schweitzer

Sincerely,

Beverly J. Warnock
Executive Director
Second Opinion Services

Parents Of Murdered Children, Inc. (POMC) offers a unique program that gives the families and friends of murder victims (or suspected victims of murder) an opportunity to review the evidence surrounding the death of their loved one.

Since the official inception of Second Opinion Services (S.O.S.) in 1994, hundreds of cases have been submitted for review.

The purpose of S.O.S. is to provide answers to survivors. Sometimes these cases are unsolved or complicated; many were ruled suicides or accidents. In other instances, families simply have questions regarding their loved one’s death.

Medical, law enforcement, and investigative S.O.S. experts review materials submitted by survivors. They look for evidence that needs to be followed up, findings that may have been misinterpreted, areas that need further investigation, and conflicting information or inconsistencies. S.O.S. is not an investigative service; however, results of S.O.S. reviews have provided direction for investigators, and led to cases being reopened and solved.

Because of the success of S.O.S., many law enforcement agencies have requested assistance, direction, training/education, and information on establishing “Cold Case” programs in their area.

2019 Second Opinion Program

The S.O.S. experts 2019 findings:

- 2 cases—S.O.S. agreed with ruling
- 2 cases—S.O.S disagreed with ruling, suggested perusing further investigation
- 1 case—S.O.S still reviewing
- 1 case—Insufficient evidence submitted for S.O.S. to form an opinion

The Murder Wall...Honoring Their Memories is a lasting tribute to those who have been murdered. Created in 1987, the Wall serves as a constant reminder of our need to help stop the violence.

Over the past year the Wall has traveled throughout the United States to our National Conference.

The Wall is comprised of many separate walnut panels. Each panel holds 120 names, dates of birth and dates of death engraved on brass plates. By the end of 2019, the Wall had grown to 33 panels. New panels join the Wall as they are completed.

Memorial Books accompany the Wall and list those on each panel. In addition, the books provide a page of information on each victim, along with their photo.

“We always know the name of the offender, but we seldom ever see or know the name of the victim. The Murder Wall is a strong and loving reminder, not only of my husband Monte, but of all those who die by violence in our country.” - Sharon Tewksbury, West Chester, Ohio.

CCPOA Continues To Support POMC

At the 33rd Annual National POMC Conference, the California Correctional Peace Officers Association (CCPOA) showed their support by making a very generous $10,000 donation. CCPOA has supported POMC for many years.
National’s Parole Block Program (PBP)

Keeping Murderers Behind Bars
For survivors of homicide victims, the early release or parole of convicted murderers is seen as a denigration of their loved one, and results in extremely intensified emotions. POMC’s Parole Block Program (PBP) strives to give survivors a sense of control, as well as a positive outlet for the anger, frustration, and disillusionment with the criminal justice system. PBP allows them to participate in the parole process by attempting to keep murderers behind bars for their minimum sentences, thus protecting society from potential repeat offenders. By the end of 2019, PBP had prevented the early release/parole of over 1699 convicted murderers.

The Big Turn-Off Makes Statement

POMC members have the opportunity to make a powerful statement about television violence during the annual Big Turn-Off.

Held the second Wednesday of January each year, the Big Turn-Off is an awareness campaign which emphasizes that viewers have control over their television.

Many of the television shows on TV today contain a great deal of violence and set poor examples for children because youngsters do not have the knowledge or skills to distinguish between appropriate and inappropriate behavior.

During the Big Turn-Off, everyone is encouraged to protest violence on television by turning off their TVs during the prime time evening hours.

Throughout 2019, thousands of survivors of homicide victims received support and assistance from local Chapters and Contact Persons across the country.

In total, POMC Chapters distributed over 50,000 copies of local newsletters in 2019, which provided critical information to both survivors and professionals in the fields of law enforcement, mental health, medicine, education, and religion.

By providing more than 88 presentations to various groups, interviews for TV, radio, newspapers, and magazine articles, Chapter members have awakened the public’s eyes to the horror and injustice suffered by those left behind after a murder.

Through their own Court Accompaniment programs, Chapter members lent their support and expertise to provide assistance for over 156 court cases.

More than 250 survivors from POMC Chapters across the U.S. attended the 33rd Annual National POMC Conference.

POMC State Coordinators, Chapter Leaders, and Contact People volunteered thousands of hours to assist others who have survived the murder of a loved one. In addition, members took on the difficult task of raising the funds necessary to provide these vital services.
Raising Public Awareness

Parents Of Murdered Children, Inc. (POMC) strongly opposes the use of murder as a form of entertainment. “Murdertainment” is insensitive to the pain of victims’ loved ones, ignores the aftermath of murder, and sets a poor example for the nation’s youth. MINE focuses on education, crime prevention, and the promotion of an overall change in society’s attitude. When POMC becomes aware of objectionable materials, MINE alerts are sent to POMC representatives across the United States. Starting in 2005, POMC began publishing MINE Alerts in the Survivors newsletter, used the POMC instant email to alert members, and posted MINE Alerts on the POMC website.

POMC in the past protested a “murder” puzzle distributed by a national clothing and accessory company. In their response to POMC they said, “We regret deeply that it did (offend you) and will be more thoughtful in the development and purchase of such items in the future.” The response also included a $100 donation.

Annual National Day Of Remembrance

Survivors and supporters across the country joined together on September 25, 2019, for POMC’s 12th Annual National Day of Remembrance for Murder Victims. The National POMC website, for 24 hours, scrolled the names of victims from across the country. On September 25th, we as a nation, state and community recognize the devastating impact of homicide on our families, friends and nation as a whole.

History: Following the Oklahoma City bombing, a National Day of Mourning was declared, a day on which to contemplate the tragedy and remember those whose lives were violently taken.

For survivors of homicide victims, having their loved ones remembered is vital. Though survivors may individually and formally “remember them” on their anniversary dates or on other special occasions, it was felt that it would be appropriate and beneficial for all survivors to have a special day to remember together. Therefore, with the approval of POMC founders, Robert and Charlotte Hullinger, and the National Board of Trustees, an annual POMC National Day of Remembrance for Murder Victims was approved in April 1999.

The National Day of Remembrance is held each year on September 25th, the anniversary date of Lisa Hullinger’s death. Lisa was the 19-year-old daughter of Robert and Charlotte Hullinger, POMC founders.

House Resolution 223 was introduced in an effort to get POMC’s National Day of Remembrance proclaimed by Congress. The Resolution passed the House in May of 2007 and passed the Senate in October 2007.
